

JEFF MUNN

Vice President, Benefit Policy Development and Client Engagement
Fidelity Investments

Jeff Munn joined Fidelity in 2012 and leads the firm's policy development and thought leadership efforts related to its Health & Welfare product offerings. Based in Washington, DC, he works with employers and within the DC policy community to enable confident employee choices that support positive health and savings behaviors.

Jeff's career has focused on helping employers to drive innovative strategies that improve outcomes and lower costs. With over 20 years benefits industry experience working with Fortune 500 employers and health plans, he has played a key role within the Washington policy community on health and retirement-related issues including electronic plan administration, consumer-driven health care, and the impact of behavioral economics on benefits decision making.

Prior to Fidelity, Jeff was a principal at Hewitt Associates, where he spent 15 years in a variety of leadership roles in its consulting and outsourcing businesses. Jeff coordinated Hewitt's initial efforts related to consumer-driven health care, and also led a group of national subject matter experts within its health management practice. He founded Hewitt's Health Care Policy Leadership Council, a group of 20 senior consultants focused on addressing the employer impact of major health care policy issues.

Jeff also practiced employee benefits and executive compensation law for five years at Gardner, Carton & Douglas, a large Chicago law firm.

Jeff is a graduate of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (with highest honors) and the University of Chicago Law School. He is a frequent speaker and writer and has been quoted in a variety of publications including The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, and The Washington Post.
